Whereas, death has suddenly removed our former Director, Mr. John B. Lunger, for many years an active, carnest and helpful member of this Board; and whereas, as Chairman of the Finance Committee, his faithfulness in the discharge of his duties, his seal and devotion to all that pertained to the welfare of the wards of The Children's Village, were constant and inspiring, we shall greatly miss him-lic was ever ready to give of his means generously and gladly. In the midst of an unusually busy life, with tremendous responsibilities, he found time to engage in helping to make men of the boys sent us from out the cilies where it is difficult to educate and make them good American citizens. His genial, kindly and likable nature, combined with a keen insight and appreciation of the requirements of our institution, rendered his associa tion with us unusually helpful and usresable and endeared him to those the knew and admired him for those characteristics of mind and heart he so eminently possessed. SEATTLE, Wash., June 14.—Ernest Lister, Governor of the State of Washington, died here to-day after an illness of several months. Formerly a Tacoma iron moulder, he was serving his second term of office when an affection of the heart and kidneys forced him to abandon his duties last Ebruary. His widow, Mrs. Aims Thornton Lister, formerly of Tacoma, and two children survive him.

Gov. Lister was born in Halifax, England, on June 15, 1870, and came to America in 1884, becoming a citizen by naturalisation.

Equipped with only a common selfoo and a business college education, however his way from the job of labore to the highest position in the State His success in private business was as it was in politics.

In private life Gov. Lister was for nine years principal owner of the Lister Construction Company of Tacoma. He later became president and general manager of the Lister Manufacturing Company of Tacoma, manufacturers of finished wood products, and director of the Scandina vian American Bank of Tacoma. He was a member of the City Council of Tacoma from 1894 to 1906, chairman of the State Board of Control from 1897 to 1903, member of the charter revision

WEEDON GROSSMITH.

Weedon Grossmith, who died yester ay in London, was made known to the American public in the companies that Rosina Vokes used to bring to this country. With Brandon Thomas and Miss Vokes he appeared in "A Pantomime Rehearsal" at Daly's Theatre. This was in 1885. He had previously begun as a painter, having exhibited with success at the Royal Academy and Gresswar Gal. the Royal Academy and Grosvenor Gal-lery. In spite of his success here he made only one effort on his return to Engiand. After playing in "Woodcock's Little Game" he resumed his profession of painter. But an offer from Sir Henry Ivying househt him to the Lycaus Than rving brought him to the Lyceum Thea re as Jacques in "Robert Macaire. This time the degree of his London success was sufficient and he remained on he stage.

Mr. Grossmith was born in London or une 9, 1852. His father was a journalst and lecturer. His older brother was George Grossmith, the comedian. George and Lawrence are his a. Mr. Grossmith's career was universally successful after his start with Irving. He acted with Richard Mans-field and later at the Haymarket, Vaudeplayed for more than a year in "The New Boy," and brought here to the old Princess Theatre his great success "Tee Night of the Party." He was last seem here at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatis in "The Countess and Mr. Preedy"
